Harry I. Sparrow

Vice President and Project Manager, PMI Associates, Inc.

Harry Sparrow is a Vice President and Project Manager with Performance Management Associates, Inc. He has over 25 years of project management experience. As a management consultant he has assisted over 100 clients, from both private industry and government, with the evaluation, design, and implementation of project management systems. Among those clients are NASA Johnson Space Center, Northrop-Grumman, Bio-Rad, Xerox, RM Parsons, Honeywell, Pinkerton Systems, Lucent Technologies, MacDonald Dettweiller, Eaton, Illinois Power, Fluor Daniel, the US Navy and US Marine Corps. He has been the leader of more than 1000 seminars and workshops and has frequently been a guest lecturer for organizations such as the Project Management Institute (PMI), the Association for Advancement of Cost Engineering (AACE) International the American Production and Inventory Control Society (APICS) and the University of California. Harry was one of the recipients of the 1998 David Packard Award of Excellence in Acquisition. He is a former president of the Performance Management Association (PMA), now PMI's College of Performance Management..